Theme of the Seminar

The theme of the seminar is self-explanatory as is evident from the title. It is needless to say how sports can transform a student with regard to discipline, physical fitness, physiological and psychological health and even academic excellence. One has to accept 'sports' as part of the academics in order to reap their benefits fully. However sports should not take precedence over academics, the act of which turns out to be counter-productive. There has to be an equal emphasis on both sports and education in order to develop a student holistically.
